bodyparts (like legs, arms, boobs, breasts, ears, mouth, fingers, nails, etc. in AION. This is a face recipe for creation based on PSO2 Collaborator Automata: YoRHa 2B, but the slider was updated to PSO2NGS Sliders, but if you want to use it on pso2 you can adjust it by yourself. The character made on this article and recipe is not 100% exactly like the NPC or the original character, but as much as possible, even though it's not too perfect. Thank you, happy creation, hope it helps ^_^

Next are the aforementioned “diamond editors”, diamond shaped wire boxes coupled with a graphic of the bodypart which give a nice indication of not only what they change but how the shape will change when you click and drag the points. Also unlike PSU, you can set a separate colour for your eyebrows and there's now a colour picker for skin color (though limited, so no martians). PSO also allowed you to remake your character's appearance. You couldn't really pick any vibrant colours, really limiting what you could do with hair. I guess you could have a joystick-controlled pointer maybe, that's the only way I can imagine a port could happen without having to completely redo the UI. Of course, a part of me wishes they had just gone with a color picker that would also allow you to tweak the saturation, some colour presets would be neat too. The voice picker is pretty much exactly the same as it was in PSU. Of course I expect that there will be limitations on them for certain hairstyles to prevent clipping, anyway. Maybe it's not really as important as I think it is! My only real concern with this is how much will I be able to change post creation? Sure there are good ones out there, like in AION, EVE, APB but they and games like them are the minority. Pusher, or shover? To anybody who was afraid that class would determine your appearance, you may breathe a sigh of relief! It also seems like accessories are separated from hairstyles, which is a big improvement over PSU (where hair and accessories were one and the same). One thing to immediately note in this video is the interface is clearly designed for PC. No screenshot or video has shown otherwise, so this may be bad news for anyone wanting to play a humanlike male cast but I know female casts have human face options at least. I assume they have sliders and whatnot to change bodysshapes like their fleshy counterparts (given the way their shape changes with the random character generator). We also got a very brief glimpse of male Newmans during the demonstration! Hairy. PSU had “Lumilass” which was the makeover shop, in which you could alter an awful lot of your characters appearance for ingame currency (JP later added body shape for cash). Is there a place strictly for character templates for the NA version? I like this a lot, I just can't imagine something like it on a console. There are certainly plenty of tools to play with now. Finally, costumes! In this demo it seems you can choose between 3 costumes and can further customize it with a limited colour picker and sticker picker. There is also body paint! You can pick things like tattoos and body-hair, but there's not much choice with them. It appears you get to choose up to 3 accessories. It also seems like human faces are not an option for male casts, at least not yet. I'm pleased with this demonstration and am looking forward to attempting to recreate my PSU characters and maybe even new ones. They don't all know what looks good, what looks bad. Heck, even if you do know what you're doing it's nice to start from a template which is at least somewhat like how you envision your character. There is also a beard picker, hell yeah. Character creation in MMOs is a funny business, for despite the assumed importance of looking somewhat unique in these worlds, most character creators in MMOs are really lacking. Seems like the colour pickers are similar to the ones we saw in PSP2, which is good because the colour picker in PSU was terrible (seriously the PSO one was better, with its RGB sliders). I'm not entirely sure what they do, but I assume this means you can change what is influenced on the graph. Female CAST creation was not demonstrated, but you can see one with a human face in my post on units. Seems you can select through pre-sets (Base Type) for head and bodyshape before you decide to go in and tweak them further. Of course, their concept outfits as seen in previous posts aren't present which means either they share the same defaults as humans or their models just simply aren't ready yet. The face morpher from PSU is back, but this time there are drop down menus on all four sides. Here is a video demonstration of the character creator, taken from the PSO2 Media Briefing and uploaded by youtube user “RemiusTheAwesome”. This does not bode well for anyone still wishing for a console release. Of particular note are the click and drag diamond shapes which alter the shapes of their indicated bodyparts. This is a good feature, in particular for more complicated character creators, simply because not all players are artists. Edit: In fact it was confirmed that their models aren't ready yet. In fact even today, PSU's character creator is still pretty exceptional in the amount of customization it gives you, which is kind of sad.
